

How to use Securafire

– NOOB SCIENCE–

Firefox is the most private and secure browser. It is a great alternative to Google Chrome. It is fast, secure, private, comes with tons of addons, great features, flexibility and it is the best. The one con with Firefox is that it has to be manually configured to be secure and private. Firefox also gives you an option to create multiple profiles, but it is very hard to manually configure every profile. So I created Securafire to help you. I have added all the necessary Extensions, configuration and made all the necessary changes and made a folder. To make it more secure I have made it such that you have to manually put the folder in the root directory.

First you have to run Securafire.exe and get 4 files:

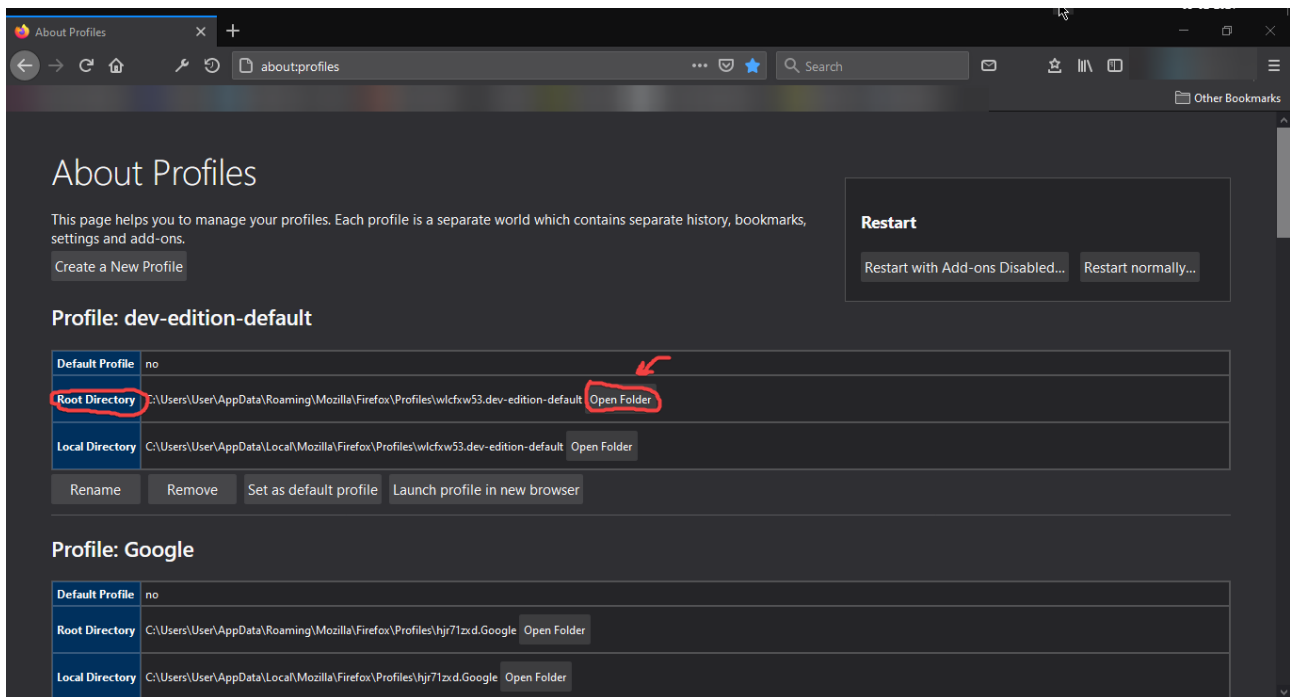

- setup.zip
- fun-profile-pics.zip
- How to use Securafire.pdf
- How to use Securafire.mp4

Then you have to unzip setup.zip and get the folder called securafire and copy all the files. Then you have to either navigate to a file directory given below and paste the files in the location

C:\Users\User\AppData\Roaming\Mozilla\Firefox\Profiles\8uocpxfz.SecuraFirefox

You can also go to Firefox browser and type about:profiles in the search bar and create a new profile. Then navigate to the root directory and paste all the files you copied before. Be sure to skip any files you are asked to skip because a few files are indented to your computer.

Then if you have my "Extency.exe" you can also put the extensions ".xpi" in the extensions folder in the root directory

You then get all the configurations I did in a second when you restart the browser/ open in new window.

With this pack of securafire, you also get a lot of extensions, about 12 extensions. All are recommended and are very nice for privacy and security. I have them listed here and are necessary, but you can always delete them whenever.

EXTENSIONS:

Use this responsibly and create a restore point to go back if something happens.
